

All's well that ends well. Way to a man's heart is through his stomach. Failure teaches success. Persistence pays off. Fortune comes in at the merry gate. Out of the mouth comes evil. The pen is mightier than the sword. When in Rome, do as the Romans do. A word is enough to the wise. Birds of a feather flock together. God helps those who help themselves. Hope for the best, but prepare for the worst. After a storm comes a calm. A picture is worth a thousand words. Easy come, easy go. Where there is a will, there is a way. He that will lie will steal. Necessity is the mother of invention. Two heads are better than one. Money comes and goes. Misfortunes never come singly. The grass is always greener on the other side of the hill. Home is where you make it. Don't teach your grandmother to suck eggs.

Absence makes the heart grow fonder. Kill two birds with one stone. Time flies like an arrow. Jack of all trades, master of none. It is no use crying over spilt milk. Love is blind. Constant dripping wears away the stone. Better to ask the way than go astray. After rain comes fair weather. When poverty comes in at the door, love flies out of the window. The early bird catches the worm. Don't judge a book by its cover. Make haste slowly. So many men, so many minds. There is no time like the present. Hear twice before you speak once. Little and often fills the purse. The cunning mason works with any stone. Fact is stranger than fiction. Rome wasn't built in a day. Time heals all wounds. Woman is as fickle as April weather. The foolish ostrich buries his head in the sand and thinks he is not seen. Ignorance is bliss.
